To be sold by Auction,

A Country Seat and adjoining Grass Lots,

On the 14th day of October, at 10 o'clock, A. M

THIS pleasant and commodious House, is situated on a 40 feet public lane, leading from the Ridge or Wissahickon Road, between the third and fourth mile stone, across ehe canal to a landing on the river Schuylkill. It is a two-story brick House, with a large, new, stone Kitchen adjoining: it contains two neat parlours, four bed-rooms, and a light dressing closet; over the kitchen are two other bed-rooms. In front and at the south end is a new piazza, extending between eighty and ninety feet, by nine and a half feet wide: adjoining the Kitchen is a Pump of excellent and never failing water, with a shed for washing; the whole under an agreeable shade of large trees. This situation has been ascertained to be more than one hundred and sixty feet in heighth above the river. At a convenient distance is a frame Coach-House and Stables, in good order. On the south-west side is an excellent Orchard, containing about eight acres, and upwards of one hundred and fifty apple and other fruit trees of the best kind. On the north-east side is a field of Clover and Timothy, put in last Spring, with a space fenced off for a Garden—the whole containing between seventeen and eighteen acres.

At the same time and place will be sold, the following Lots, adjoining the premises and each other, viz.

Nos. 1, 2, 3, 4—Four Lots, each measuring in front on the Wissahickon road, about nine perches, by about sixty-one perches deep, and about twelve perches wide at the south-west end, each Lot containing nearly four acres—Clover and Timothy put in last year.

No. 5—Fronting on the above-mentioned lane, containing upwards of four acres—Clover and Timothy put in last year.

Nos. 6, 7—Also fronting the said forty feet lane, and each containing about seven and a half acres; Clover and Timothy put in last year.

No. 8—Contains about sixteen acres, all in Clover, bounded by the said lane and another lane leading to Jonathan Williams' house: it is an elegant situation, commanding a view of the neighboring seats on both sides of the river. On this Lot is a very large Hay-House, capable of containing one hundred and fifty tons, with a pump and yard open to the south, calculated to stall-feed cattle.

A Draft of the whole will be produced at the time of sale, describing the contents of each Lot, and the conditions will then be declared; a part only of the payment will be required on delivery.

N. B. The above-mentioned lane now communicates with the path of the canal, which is a good road to town in all seasons.

For further particulars apply to EDWARD BONSALL and Co. in Dock-street.

The heighth in the first and second stories is twelve feet, and have stuco cornices, and nine rooms up-stairs besides the garrets, which are divided into three rooms: a good kitchen, wash-house, milk and bathing-houses, a large ice-house, a pump in the yard, and a three feet three inch alley that leads into Fourth-street. The cellars are laid with lime, and floored with two inch plank, and plastered. The yard is well paved and the house is clear of ground-rent. Two brick stables in Walnut-street, with two coach-houses, one of them will hold two carriages the other one. The smallest stable has room for three, the largest for four horses. It is 21 feet front on Walnut-street, by 30 feet 3 inches deep. They have excellent lofts over them. The building is arched and laid with lime and two inch plank, and will hold about one hundred pipes of wine; is clear of ground-rent, and has the privilege of an 11 and 1-2 feet alley that leads into Fifth-street.
Also, a large, Brick Store, 33 feet front on Fourth-street, by 50 feet deep, which might, at a small expence, be turned into a handsome dwelling house, having been so contrived in the building. It has a yard, 48 feet 6 inches deep, by 24 feet wide; has a rain water pump, and other conveniences, and the cellar is laid with two inch plank, and is now rented at 40 dollars per month. FOR THE GAZETTE OF THE UNITED STATES.

No. I.

A writer under the signature of Hampden, in the Richmond paper of the 1st inst. after asserting the exclusive right of Virginia to fill the office of President, calls the attention of the citizens of that state to the illustrious Thomas Jefferson, as the fittest character in the union to fill the President's chair and proceeds to enumerate the various pretensions of that gentleman. They are,

1st. His merits as a philosopher.

2d. As a republican.

3d. As a friend to the civil and religious rights of mankind.

4th. As a citizen, who was in favor of the present federal government, but wished for amendments.

5th. As an enthusiastic admirer of the French revolution, without however surrendering the independency and self government of America.

6th. As a citizen, who had a proper sense of the perfidious conduct of Britain towards us, which he would have counteracted by pacific measures, and measures more advantageous than those which have taken place.

7th. As a citizen, whose diplomatic talents, and political sagacity are not inferior to his republicanism and unalterable attachment to liberty.

8th. As possessing a fortune no less independent than his principles, and with a disposition, continually impelling his fertile genius to discoveries and improvements in the arts and sciences.

I shall not stop to consider the exclusive claim of Virginia to the presidency, but shall proceed to examine the pretensions of Thomas Jefferson, as above detailed. We may justly presume that his panegyrist has brought forward every title which this candidate possesses to the public favor on this occasion, and we may therefore safely pronounce, that those and those alone are the titles on which his pretensions rest. I shall examine,

1st. The merit of T. Jefferson, as a philosopher.

Whether a moral or a natural philosopher, or both, is not stated by Hampden. The character of a good moral philosopher is certainly a very respectable one, and if Mr. Jefferson's panegyrists can produce any evidence of his merits in that relation, I shall be happy to see them. If it can be shewn that he has disapproved of the cruelties which have stained the French revolution, that he has reprobated instead of countenancing the impious doctrines of Thomas Paine, that he has been an advocate for peace, order and submission to the laws, that he has never recommended in a public character, a profligate violation of public faith, in that case, his qualities as a good moral philosopher, would be valuable ingredients in the character of President of the United States.

Whether or not, he has vindicated the horrors and cruelties perpetrated in France, has been the advocate of Thomas Paine and the patron of his works, has fostered dissentions in the administration of the federal government, has connived at the opposition to the laws, has recommended measures destructive of the public credit and reputation, will hereafter appear by a review of his conduct, and by a reference to public facts and documents.

If Hampden only intended to exhibit him in the character of a great natural philosopher, I am at a loss to discern in what respects his merits as a natural philosopher, can recommend him to the presidency. It should seem that the active, anxious and responsible station of president would ill suit the calm, retired and exploring views of a natural philosopher; his merit might entitle him to the professorship of a college, but they would be as incompatible with the duties of the presidency as with the command of the Western army. As well might we have brought forward the eminent talents of Rittenhouse, had he been living, or the wonderful genius of Cox, the great bridge builder: indeed the merits of the famous equestrian Ricketts would have been at least as likely to recommend him to a station, which may occasionally require great military talents.

Had Hampden justly appreciated the talents of this great natural philosopher, he would have continued him in his philosophical retirement, employing his fertile genius in discoveries and improvements in the useful arts, impaling butterflies and insects, and contriving turn-about chairs, for the benefit of his fellow citizens and mankind in general. While in the innocent enjoyment of such harmless occupations, no real friend to his peace and repose, and to the welfare of mankind, would draw this calm philosopher from these useful pursuits, to plunge him into the busy and dangerous vortex of an arduous station.

To be serious, let us examine the claim which his panegyrists sets up for him to the title of philosopher.

For the proof of his assertion, he refers us to the Notes on Virginia. As a moral philosopher, I do not recollect any part of that work, which justifies the assertion; but as a natural philosopher, his claim is probably founded on his ingenious dissertation respecting the primary causes of difference between the whites and the blacks. It is worthy of insertion, and will furnish an accurate idea of his philosophical sagacity. This philosopher had once formed the extravagant project of emancipating all the slaves of Virginia, and the more extravagant one of afterwards shipping them off to some other country; in page 252 of his Notes on Virginia, he says,—"it will probably be asked, why not retain and incorporate the blacks in this state? He answers, deep rooted prejudices entertained by the whites, ten thousand recollections by the blacks of the injuries they have sustained, new provocations, the real distinctions which NATURE has made, and many other circumstances, will divide us into parties and produce convulsions, which will never end but in the extermination of the one or the other race. To these objections, which are political, may be added others, which are physical and moral. The first difference which strikes us is that of colour; whether the black of the negro resides in the reticular membrane between the skin and the scarf skin, or in the scarf skin itself, whether it proceeds from the colour of the blood, or the colour of the bile, or from that of some other secretion, the difference is fixed in nature, and is as real as if its seat and cause were better known to us. And is this difference of no importance? Is is not the foundation of a greater or a less share of beauty in the two rates? Are not the fine mixtures of red and white, the expressions of every passion by greater or less suffusions of colour in the one, preferable to that eternal monotony which reigns in the countenances, that immoveable veil of black which covers all the emotions of the other race? Add to these, flowing hair, a more elegant symmetry of form, their own judgment in favor of the whites, declared by their preference of them as uniformly as is the preference of the oran outang for the black women over those of his own species. Besides those of colour, figure and hair, there are other physical distinctions proving a difference of race; they have less hair on the face and body, they secrete less by the kidnies and more by the glands of the skin, which gives them a very strong and disagreeable odour. They are more tolerant of heat, and less so of, cold, than the whites, perhaps owing to a difference of structure in the pulmonary apparatus; they are more ardent after their female; their griefs are transient; in general their existence appears to participate more of sensation than reflection. They are in reason much inferior to the whites. It is not against experience to suppose that different species of the same genus, or varieties of the same species, may possess different qualifications. Will not a lover of natural history, then, one who views the gradations in all the races of animals, with the eye of philosophy, excuse an effort to keep those in the department of man as distinct as nature has formed them; this unfortunate difference of colour, and perhaps of faculty, is a powerful obstacle to the emancipation of these people. Many of their advocates while they wish to vindicate the liberty of human nature are anxious also to preserve its dignity and beauty. Some of these, embarrassed by the question, what further is to be done with them, join themselves in opposition with those who are actuated by sordid avarice only. Among the Romans, emancipation required but one effort: the slave when made free might mix without staining the blood of his master, but with us, a second is necessary, unknown to history; when freed, he is to be removed beyond the reach of mixture."

PHOCION.

Philadelphia, October 14.

Yesterday afternoon arrived the Franklin, captain Walker, in 49 days from London, by whom we have received London papers to the 27th of August, of which the following are the most material contents. [Am. D. A.]

PARIS, August 22.

It is said, that the directory has refused to receive Mr. Hammond, minister from the cabinet of London.—Batave.

In spite of the pacific assurances from most parts of Europe, we see nothing to make us believe that the war is yet drawing nigh to an end. In spite of the armistice of the king of Naples, we perceive he is still making the most urgent preparations for war. The emperor, on his side, has ordered very extraordinary levies of men and horses, and all citizens as well as corporations, are desired to send in their quotas of plate, jewels and other valuable effects, towards defraying the extraordinary expences of the war, according to their several abilities. The king of Prussia is availing himself of the calamitous situation of the empire, to aggrandize his power in Germany. Already, under pretext of forming a pretended convention in the city of Nuremberg, his majesty has sent troops to take possession of that town. It appears also, that the city of Frankfort is on the eve of passing into other hands; and it is said, the king of Prussia is to be master of it. The senate of that city has just published a proclamation, in which it announces, "That it has to combat a "very great misfortune, and also a formal change "in its political constitution."

It appears also, that there is forming a political balance, the object of which is to enfeeble the house of Austria, and to destroy its influence in the affairs of Europe. Already do the extraordinary pretentions of the directory mark its design of seizing on his majesty's most valuable possessions in Germany; and to render his humiliation complete, the directory are determined to snatch from him his possessions in Italy. The pretext for all these projects of invasion is, to make Lombardy an independent republic, which, owing its political existence to France, will become a faithful and powerful ally to her.

The circles of Franconia have obtained an armistice, and agreed to pay the republic 8 millions in money, and to find 2000 horses.

A report is this moment current, that Mantua has capitulated, and the army of the Rhine has effected a junction in Tyrol with that of Italy.

The wife of a member of the Batavian convention has been brought to bed of five boys, all of whom are living.

Letters from Italy mention, that the French found 70 bales of silk at Milan, which, as they probably belonged to the English, have been sold, and it is said they have been bought by some Swiss merchants.

OFFICIAL DETAILS.

MOREAU, commander in chief to the executive directory.

"Head Quarters at Amiens, 26th Thermidor, August 13.

"On the 21st instant, (August 8) we attacked the enemy in their positions at Neresheim. They were repulsed with the loss of 450 men, who were made prisoners.

"On the 22d, we reconnoitred in order to find a proper position for the army, which was extremely difficult from the nature of the country.

"On the 23d, we attacked the enemy's advanced guard which we defeated. Their loss was between 430 and 500 men, which we took prisoners. A dreadful storm and the darkness of the night, prevented us from profitting of our success.

"On the 24th, Prince Charles, having received strong reinforcements from Galicia, and the interior of Austria, attacked our whole line. Our right flank was repulsed, and the enemy proceeded to Heydenheim, where our Etat-Major General was, who retreated to Kenisbron, so that the enemy occupied an extent of four leagues on our rear, but this movement did not disconcert us.

"Our advanced guard had likewise been repulsed but the corps of reserve arrived, and, on receiving instructions, renewed the battle.

"The enemy's chief effort was directed against our right. General St. Cyr defended his position with the utmost bravery, although attacked by a great superiority of force.

"The right of the left wing was likewise attacked with vigour. The state of the ground permitting again to act offensively, general Desaix made a spirited attack, obliged the enemy to give way, and took two hundred prioners.

"The reserve of cavalry placed between the two attacks, kept the enemy in check, and prevented them from passing between the two wings.

The two armies, after an obstinate contest, which lasted seventeen hours, remained inactive the whole night on the field of battle, and at day break the enemy retreated.

"The success of an attack was certain, but our convoys of ammunition halting on account of the retreat of the head-quarters, precluded us from the possiblity of hazarding a battle, which for want of catouches, we could not have supported above two hours; besides it was necessary that our flankers should fall into their position on the right. The enemy's advanced guard was stationed in the most judicious manner. If they had re-tained the position which they had occupied the preceding evening, I should have attacked them to day, but they retired behind the Vernitz, and are about to pass the Danube. Our light troops are in pursuit of them; they have already reached Nordlingen. The whole army will immediately follow them.

"I dispatch a courier without delay, convinced that the enemy having been close in our rear, an alarm has been excited, and apprehensions entertained for our safety. I shall transmit to you the particulars of these three actions, which reflect much honour on the courage of the army, and the professional talents of the officers, who directed their operations in the various attacks, but it is impossible for me to do it now. Indeed, we have been so intent upon our object, that for six successive days, we have scarcely alighted from our horses. The army is almost exhausted with fatigue, but victory makes them forget their excessive labours. The enemy estimate their loss in these conflicts at 7,000 men killed or taken prisoners.

"I have this instant received a dispatch from gen. Ferino, who announces the arrival of our troops at Bergens, where they took several mortars, a howitzer, four culverines, and 22 pieces of cannon, between 30 and 40 large barges, and about 40,000 sacks of oats, barley and flour.

"I am almost exhausted for want of sleep and from incessant fatigue. We have just received the grateful intelligence of an important victory gained by the army of Italy.

(Signed) "MOREAU."

OFFICIAL LETTER FROM CADIZ,

To the Minister of the Marine at Paris.

CADIZ, 10 Thermidor, August 5.

Yesterday the two Spanish squadrons, under the command of admirals Languara and Solano, with that of the republic, commanded by admiral Richery, sailed together from this port. They made their way with a favourable wind, and are now out of sight. The departure of these three squadrons at the same time, all well armed and well commanded, has thrown a consternation among the enemies of the republic. The people here are lost in conjecture; but they look forward to great events; time will fix all these uncertainties.

FRANCONIA, August 10.

The contingent of the circle of Franconia is still at Mentz.

Nuremberg has now a garrison of 2,000 men, and the burghers of that city were disarmed in the same manner as those at Frankfort.

HESSE CASSEL, August 14.

Baron Waix, the Hessian minister of state, and the French minister, citizen Rivals, instead of going to Wurtzburgh, returned on the 10th instant to Frankfort. Their excursions are said to relate to an armistice between the circle of the Upper Rhine and the French Republic, which has been hitherto negociating, and is on the eve of conclusion. A separate congress will be held at Frankfort, where citizen Barthelemy, the French ambassador, is expected from Basil.

LEYDEN, August 29.

A rupture which appeared on the point of breaking out between Portugal and our republic, in consequence of a step taken by the latter on account of her intimacy with the French republic, will probably be prevented; in consequence of posterior Eclaircissements, the ordinance of her most faithful majesty, dated the 19th July, for the purpose of breaking off all commercial relations between the two states, and of laying an embargo upon Dutch ships, has been revoked, by an order dated the 23d July.

HANAU, August 13.

This moment intelligence is received here that the corps of general Wartensleben, in Franconia, is retreating towards the Danube. On the 9th inst. his head quarters were at Lauf, and on the 10th at Hirschluck. The French continue to penetrate farther. On the 9th, part of their advanced guard was only a league and a half from Nuremberg. One of their generals afterwards entered that city with some chasseurs, and on the 10th inst. a French corps of 2000 men was expected there.

FRANKFORT, August 13.

The French leave Manheim entirely to itself, nor do they seem to threaten Philipsburgh any farther.

On the 11th, the balloon of the army of the Sambre and Meuse, which has quite recently been constructed at Meudon, near Paris, arrived.

All the remaining circles of the empire are now negociating with France.
